

Seminar on “The Impact of Brexit and Prospects for China’s Financial Centres in a Global Context: Beijing, Shanghai, Shenzhen, Hong Kong” Tuesday, 4 October 2016

Many observers have argued that Brexit, the exit of the United Kingdom from the European Union, will reshape the leadership and organizational management of finance among global centers.

- Will London’s status as the leading international financial center be threatened?
- Will Paris’s and Frankfurt’s financial communities gain from Brexit?
- What is the impact on China’s financial centres, Beijing, Shanghai, Shenzhen and Hong Kong on the world stage?

The Finance Management Committee of the HKMA is proud to invite Professor David Meyer to share his insights on the above.

Guest Speaker

Professor David Meyer
Senior Lecturer in Management at
Olin Business School

 Washington University in St. Louis
OLIN BUSINESS SCHOOL

Currently, Professor David Meyer is teaching international business at Washington University in St. Louis with a focus on Asia. Prior to this, he was Professor of Sociology & Urban Studies at Brown University.

Professor Meyer has done extensive research on Hong Kong as a financial center for several decades. His recent publications included the transformation of Hong Kong as a financial center; job mobility of financiers to Hong Kong; the banking networks of Asian financial centers, etc.
