

What Business Employers say ...

DMS has contributed greatly to the training of management professionals for society. Besides providing fundamental training in management studies, DMS paves the way for advanced education for participants, accommodating the social needs for continuous education. Graduates are offered study opportunities for Bachelor degree programmes or MBAs in various overseas universities.

In view of Hong Kong people's heavy workload and pressure, DMS is designed in such a flexible fashion that classes are run at wide-ranging times and learning centres for attendees to choose. Participants can plan their personal time frames for learning according to their own work patterns, making study more manageable for working executives.
