Mission

The Division of Graduate Counseling is dedicated to training and mentoring high quality professionals to competently work within their area of specialization, with culturally diverse populations and with an integrated understanding of Christian faith in professional practice.

Accreditation

IWU was initially accredited in 1966 by the Higher Learning Commission of the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools and has maintained its Accreditation since then.

Objective

Many individuals, couples and families utilize non-clinically oriented human services, faith-based agencies or churches to seek assistance with personal adjustment or relational concerns. Issues such as crisis pregnancies, adjustment to normal life transitions, personal loss and grief, parenting skill enhancement, and enhancement of personal wellness are common non-clinical concerns that lead people to seek out the assistance of lay counselors, peer supports and indigenous people helpers.

The 36-credit-hour MACC is a non-licensure track that prepares students to provide non-clinical counseling-related services in the community. Our program focuses on an integration of sound psychological theory, interpersonal skill development and faith-based principles.

Upon completion, you will be prepared to be a source of care, compassion, and support to persons and families dealing with life adjustment and transitions. Students in the Community Care program are exposed to a variety of learning experiences that enable them to discover ways in which personal faith can be integrated with practice.
